

Additional Benefits

The above case histories are just three of many examples of how Continuous Commissioning® results in dramatic savings. Additional benefits can also be realized from the ongoing accumulation of hourly (or sub-hourly) building data. It provides factual data on the building's performance which can be used to accurately identify and resolve problems. This data can also be used to make better decisions when upgrades to the electrical and mechanical infrastructure are implemented.